Parents often ask –
"Isn't career planning for high school students?"

The truth is, the decisions made in Class 10-11-12 are shaped years earlier

That shaping begins in Class 6-9, when a child's brain is developing rapidly, curiosity is at its peak, and they are beginning to form academic preferences

Ages 10 to 14 are neuroplastic years

This is when children start developing:

- ✓ Abstract thinking
- ✓ Problem-solving skills
- ✓ Emotional control

It's the perfect stage to introduce structured learning, build concentration, and expose them to real-world careers

Whether your child becomes a lifelong self-learner or struggles later — it often depends on the study habits built now

Class 6–9 is where students form:

- ✓ Study style (rote vs conceptual)
- ✓ Time management patterns
- ✓ Attention span

And if guided early, they learn how to learn – not just what to learn

This is when students move from “combined” to separate subjects like:

- Physics, Chemistry, Biology
- Civics, History, Geography

Now Parents and Consultant:
observe their interests and learning style — before they're locked into a career track

The best time to explore careers is when the mind is free and curious

In Class 10–12, most students are already under board, NEET, JEE, or other entrance exam pressure

But in Class 6–9, they're still open to explore, ask questions, and get inspired

Let's face it – by Class 9–10, students begin resisting parental advice. But right now, they still look up to you.

That makes this the perfect time to introduce:

- ✓ Career stories
- ✓ Field visits
- ✓ Skill-building activities

Before peer pressure takes over

What Happens Without Guidance?

EARLY CAREER HELP

Without proper direction in Class 6–9:

- ❑ Students choose subjects based on marks, not interest
- ❑ Stream selection becomes random after Class 10
- ❑ Potential remains hidden and untapped

But with early mentoring, they make informed, confident decisions.

Early exposure helps them build clarity, confidence, and individuality — reducing the risk of being misled later

 Here's what we recommend for every Class 6–9 student:

- ✓ Aptitude + interest assessments (not just IQ tests)
- ✓ Exposure to new-age careers – AI, psychology, environment, law
- ✓ Workshops to develop self-awareness and learning habits
- ✓ Parental alignment sessions
